Shortly before noon, the marchers collected in Washington Square, the starting point. They represented every state in the union, besides 26 foreign countries. Thousands of banners were unfurled. Thirty bands blared forth. A majority of the women were dressed in white and all wore white hats. Ten thousand men marched with them. The leaders ordered that there be no laughing or talking. San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Delving deeper into the case of Mrs. Mary Pames who murdered Michael Weinstein, and chopped up his body, police today were convinced her deed resulted solely from a desire to blot out the man, who stood between her and a past she sought to forget. His appearance here, his possession of letters she had written, and the fact that she brought back other days. She feared her husband would learn—so she killed him, as she has confessed.

GERMANY TO TAKE OVER FOOD SUPPLY

Scarcity Compels Action To Divide It Systematically--Bread Riots Reported

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, Oct. 23.—Germany is about to take over, nationally, the food supply and regulation of prices, it was officially announced today. Hitherto these matters have been in the hands of state and provincial authorities. "It is necessary to equalize conditions in various parts of the empire," said the statement, explaining this move. "The supply is abundant, but it is desired to avoid differences and to make distributions even throughout Germany, thus assuring a sufficiency everywhere at reasonable cost."

While Germany explains there is sufficient food, travelers returning from abroad this week have reported that the situation really is grave and that food riots have occurred in leading cities. For some time there has been localized supervision of distribution to effect as broad economy as possible. Bread tickets, for instance, have permitted citizens to get just so much, and no more bread. Even greater economy is forecasted by the complete nationalization of the food supply. Prices are said by travelers to have gone to exorbitant figures.

JOINT MEETING OF COUNTY COURTS MAY CLOSE STEEL BRIDGE

Highway Engineer's Report Places Responsibility Upon County Courts

"In our opinion we deem it imperative, in the interest of public safety, to prohibit the passage of vehicles such as are now making daily use of the bridge," said the report of Assistant Engineer Holmes which implied that the Highway engineer's department had washed its hands of the affair and passed it up to the county courts of Polk and Marion counties. As it is evident that some action must be taken at once the county courts are holding a joint meeting today in Dallas with representatives of the City of Salem, which is a third owner of the steel bridge, to consider the advisability of closing the bridge to traffic.

The Marion county court does not wish to be a party to another Eastland disaster which might result should the present structure collapse under a heavy load and hurl its human freight into the river. Since they have had ample warning the courts consider that they would be blamed should anyone be hurt on the bridge and again they would be criticized if they should close the bridge and put in a ferry but it will not be surprising should the joint meeting today decide to close the bridge until a new one is constructed.

The question to be discussed this afternoon in Dallas will be largely one of policy and Frank Gibson, chairman of the Citizens Joint Committee of Polk and Marion counties will be present to give the point of view of the Polk county residents who transact business in this city and of the Marion county residents who transact business in Polk county.

CLAIM ITALIANS ARE REPULSED BY AUSTRIANS

Also Claim Russians Are Driven Back and Many Prisoners Taken

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, Oct. 23.—Though admitting the Italians had started a general offensive on their frontier and had placed Austrian positions at points, today's official statement claimed the Italians later had been repulsed everywhere. The statement likewise claimed, that though reversed temporarily in the battling in Russia and Galicia, the Teutons now have regained considerable lost ground and have driven the enemy before them.

"After over 30 hours of artillery preparation, the Italian Friday began an expected general attack, the third since the war began," said the statement. "They were repulsed everywhere. At several places in front of the Austrian positions, the ground was covered with dead. Where they approached and entered the Austrian positions, the Italians were either ejected, killed or captured. A heavy artillery duel is progressing in the Tyrol. The Russians continued their attack at Novo Aleksandrietsch. The Austrians regained a two or three mile front. Later Russian counter attacks on this front broke down in the face of artillery fire.

Russians went of Czartorysk drove a wedge into the Austro-German line, but Friday, having been reinforced, we counter attacked. We attacked on three sides near Okonek and the Russians were driven back. Enemy attempts to divert by attacking northwest of Czartorysk, and also at Kolk failed. Finally Count Herstein's troops unexpectedly advanced and forced the enemy to flee.

Altogether since October 16 we have taken prisoners 3,600 Russians on the Kormyn and Str.

Gang Counterfeits Mexican Currency

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—Counterfeit Mexican currency amounting to thousands of dollars is being turned out by San Francisco lithographers, according to a charge made today by R. F. DeNiro, Mexican consul general here, in a circular sent to commercial, banking and industrial concerns. "For several months a criminal element of both Mexicans and Americans has been systematically counterfeiting Mexican money issued by our revolutionary government," says the statement. "Authorities were unable to prosecute because of the circumstances which the revolution had brought about, due to suspension of relations between the two countries. With the recognition of General Carranza I wish to announce that now things are in such shape that we will be able to follow up and see to it that punishment is inflicted."

Midnight Fire Hurts Oregon Town

Grants Pass, Or., Oct. 23.—Fire at midnight last night destroyed seven buildings in the business section of Grants Pass, a little town nine miles north of Medford, on the Southern Pacific railroad, entailing a total loss of about $20,000. The fire started from a defective flue in the building owned by I. B. Williams, formerly used as a rooming house, but vacant except for a caretaker. Another vacant building owned by Mr. Williams was also burned, his loss being about $8,000. The postoffice building and the Southern Pacific depot were burned but the contents were removed without much loss. Other buildings destroyed were a two story rooming house owned by W. M. Richards; general merchandise store of D. W. Mitchell, stock saved; and the Ott blacksmith shop.

FOOD RIOTS IN GERMANY

London, Oct. 23.—Goaded by hunger, Germans in many cities are rioting for food. This is responsible for Germany's decision to take the matter of food distribution and prices into the hands of the federal government and it is reported a prohibition on meat sales two days a week has been declared. The "leavings" from bar-racks tables are fed to crowds, driven to desperation by high prices and food scarcity.

SHE FACED DEATH AS MARTYRS OF OLD WITHOUT A TREMOR

Tragic Yet Pathetic Story of Heroine's Death Is Told by Minister

THE IDEA OF REPRISALS SIMPLY "UNTHINKABLE"

Story Sends Thousands of Indignant Englishmen To Join the Army

London, Oct. 23.—In her death before a German firing squad, Miss Edith Cavell, English woman, of Brussels, served her country better than she did in life when she aided soldiers to escape from Belgium. Recruiting officers said today no incident—not even the sinking of the liner Lusitania by a German submarine and the Zeppelin night raids on London, nor even the kings appeal—has resulted in the recruiting of such suitable men as the Cavell incident has caused.

Already spurred by the report of her death as detailed by American Minister Brand Whitlock, the recruiting took a new spurt today following publication of the report of Rev. H. S. T. Gahan, British clergyman—his story of a heroic death, seldom equaled in historic annals.

Like Joan of Arc. Calmly, bravely, Miss Cavell faced her execution. "I thank God for this 10 weeks of quiet," the little woman told him, referring to her days of imprisonment before death. "My life has always been hurried and full of difficulties; this time of rest has been a great mercy."

Her patriotism has the ardor of a Joan of Arc, but with it she declared she realized this was not enough—that she must die with "no hatred nor bitterness toward anyone."

The pastor and the woman took communion together, and she softly repeated the "Agnus Dei" after him. "Then," said Gahan's report, "she spoke of her soul's needs at the moment and she received the assurance of God's words as only a Christian can do."

"We Shall Meet Again." In parting, Miss Cavell smiled and said: "We shall meet again." On top of the wave of popular indignation at revelations of what England regards as German treachery in the Cavell case, the king issued an appeal for "more men and yet more." He called the present moment grave, and said additional forces are needed to secure victory and an enduring peace.

It was understood that the royal advisors hastened this appeal, because they believed there never has been a more opportune time. Miss Cavell's family today suggested a memorial London hospital for her, rather than "Cavell battalions, a monument or stained glass church windows." Officials agreed with the family that similar reprisals by England would be "unthinkable."

An Unbelievable Story. The German story that the woman was one of the leaders of a widespread organization to aid Belgians of military age to escape the country, was scouted as ridiculous. Admittedly, she acted independently in a few cases. The latest version of Miss Cavell's death is that the German soldiers purposely aimed not to kill her, but that the Brussels German commander finished her with a pistol. This version, however, is unofficial and so different from the others that it is not credited. The effect of the pope's protest to the kaiser about killing women is not yet known.

Capital and Labor Must Get Together

New York, Oct. 23.—"If capital and labor do not get together in the right spirit, America's future is doomed," declared John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in an interview today. "One cannot exist without the cooperation of the other. To drive this stupendous fact home to each of these two forces, and to make each know that it is but the complementary force of the other and not an antagonistic force, is the most vital problem before America today. "I am not so bold as to say that my 'Colorado plan' will be the means of bringing about this understanding completely, but I hope it may contribute to this end." The young oil king denied that the plan is an attempt to supplant the union, and he reiterated that both the father and himself had always believed in personal contact between the employer and employe. He said there must never be another strike in the Colorado Fuel & Iron company plants. "The imprudent man reflects on what he has said and the prudent man on what others say."

Some fellows are opposed to everything they can't run. I'll bet the ladies miss the ole "Palmy" days.
